

For the purposes of this puzzle, assume that people are equally likely to be born under any sign of the Zodiac.

There are twelve signs of the Zodiac. How big a group of people would you have to be in before it was more likely than not that at least two of the people present shared the same birth sign?

